

Reduce Risk and Increase Safety Through Incident Reporting

Stop accidents before they happen

MedCall offers configurable incident reporting so organizations can assess their risk for non-injury incidents and take corrective action.

Easily report workplace incidents anytime, anywhere

As the top name in tele-triage for workers' compensation, we're taking things a step further with Incident Reporting, designed to track non-injury events at your workplace. Think spills, blocked exits, or falling objects—situations that may seem small but hold the potential for serious accidents, security issues, or property damage. By catching these early, organizations can fortify their Safety Culture, investigate thoroughly, and implement smart risk controls. The goal? Prevent costly and damaging incidents that could lead to legal, even criminal, trouble.

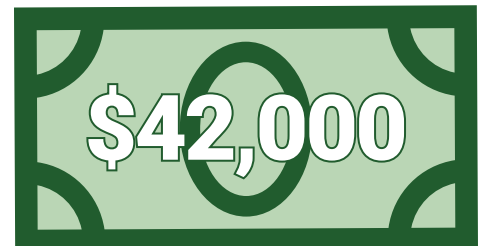

Much like our injury reporting system, our incident platform serves as a one-stop solution for tracking workplace incidents. With the wealth of data we collect, safety managers gain the ability to dive deep into root cause analysis, uncovering patterns and systemic issues that might otherwise go unnoticed. This insight is invaluable—it helps reveal what type of training your team might need, which policies need updating, and where processes can be tightened. Ultimately, it's all about improving your workplace safety culture and minimizing risks before they escalate into larger problems.

Here's how our Incident Reporting service simplifies the process:

1. When a worker spots an incident, they call MedCall directly.
2. A trained intake specialist quickly gathers the necessary details tailored to your organization.
3. Once complete, the report is swiftly sent as a PDF to the organization for immediate action.
